Journalism as a profession: An impossible equation?

Kaarle Nordenstreng, Professor Emeritus
School of Communication, Media and Theatre
University of Tampere, Finland

&

Ullamaija Kivikuru, Professor Emerita
Swedish School of Social Science
University of Helsinki, Finland
Outline of presentation

• Three roles of journalism in historical development
• Two traditions in sociology of professions
• Five modes of media and power
• Three dilemmas of professional journalism
• So what?

Presentation based on the authors’ chapter in Finnish Julkisuus ja demokratia (‘Public sphere and democracy’) published earlier this year, and on Kauko Pietilä’s forthcoming * Journalismi ammattina: Journalismiprofession teoria* (‘Journalism as vocation: Theory of the profession of journalism’).
Starting point:
Theory <Journalism> Practice

- Theory: concepts and knowledge institutions
- Practice: real life with its concerns and needs
- Thinking
- Action
- Idea of profession (Beruf) as solution to combine them

Classics: Immanuel Kant (1781), Emile Durkheim (1890), George Simmel (1908), Max Weber (1919), Talcott Parsons (1951)
History of journalism
(according to Michael Schudson 1995):
Role of journalism as...

• Advocacy
• Market
• Trustee
Old concept (Oxford English dictionary)

- profession (1425)
- professional (1604)
- professionally (1679)
- professionalist (1794)
- professionist (1804)
- professionalism (1856)
- professionality (1861)
- deprofessionalize (1884)
- professionalized (1890)
- professionalizing (1899)
- professionalization (1901)
Sociology of professions: Main traditions

- Functionalist-idealistic
  - professions as specialization and development in society
  - strengthening social cohesion, replacing pre-industrial moral order and religion
  - optimistic vision, part of modernity

- Critical-realistic
  - professions as elitistic bastions
  - weakening democracy, making citizens to passive consumers
  - turning into new religion
Modes of media and power
(Raymond Williams 1961, Hannu Nieminen 2000)

1. Authoritarian
2. Commercial
3. Paternal
4. Democratic
5. Postmodernist
Diagram 1. THE AUTHORITARIAN MODE

Power holders

Media professionals

Audiences
Diagram 2. THE COMMERCIAL MODE

Shareholders

Media professionals

Consumers
Diagram 3. THE PATERNAL MODE

a) Informative-administrative type

Power holders

Media professionals

Audiences
b) Social responsibility type

Power holders

Media professionals

Audiences
Diagram 4. DEMOCRATIC MODE

a) The representative type

Power holders

Media professionals

Audiences
b) The participatory type (media professionals as articulators)

Power holders

Mp = Media professionals
A1...n = Audiences
Diagram 5. THE POSTMODERNIST MODE: The end of journalism

Power holders

Individuals (media professionals, media consumers, customers, audience members)
Dilemmas of professional journalism

1. Citizenship
   – civic journalism and social media shrink the profession
   – liquid media work disperse the profession

2. Self-regulation
   – codes of ethics and courts of honor support narrow autonomy
   – professional autonomy helps industry against democracy
   – self-regulation removes media outside democratic control

3. Journalism education
   – professional training nurtures narrow professionalism
   – multimedia needs in curricula push liberal arts aside
So what?

• Such dilemmas and paradoxes are real and healthy as intellectual stimulation for the field which suffers from self-sufficiency (‘Fortress journalism syndrome’) and technological fascination (‘Nokia syndrome’)

• Challenge to professionalism is welcome as a cure against the fortress journalism syndrome

• Equation is impossible by definition – and good so!
Thank you!

kaarle.nordenstreng@uta.fi

http://www.uta.fi/cmt/en/contact/staff/kaarlenordenstreng/index.html